Two Schools, Pan Am Building Are Hit as Excavators Quit

Work on five large construction projects in the District area-including two schools-was halted today by a work stoppage of more than 100 engineers operating excavating machines.

A conciliation session was scheduled for late today to attempt to break the deadlock between Local 77 (AFL), Operating Engineers' Union and the Excavators' Association of Washington, Inc., which represents 14 contracting companies Federal Conciliator James A. Holden will confer with representatives of the union and the as-

Union officials said the dispute will delay work on projects at the Dalecarlia reservoir, the Pan American Union Building on Constitution avenue and the University of Maryland aviation research laboratory. Also stopped is construction on the new Sousa Junior High School at Thirty-fourth and Ely streets S.E., and the 15-room addition to the Randall Junior High School at First and I streets S.W., according to Archie Hutson, District director of construction

Work on other large projects in the area, such as the K street skyway, the new powerhouse at Alexandria and Quantico, Va., and various sewer contracts is not affected according to Mr. Hutson. He said inspectors were looking into the

Fast Handling of Cases Here Is Cited at Circuit Conference

The District Court drew the praise of Chief Justice Vinson and Attorney General Clark today for its speedy handling of motions under advisement and disposition of criminal cases.

The Chief Justice participated today in the eighth annual Judicial Circuit Conference in the United States Court of Appeals Building. Chief Justice Vinson commended the efficiency of the District Court here and said that as of March 31, it led all other districts in the United States in the expeditious handling of motions under advisement.

Attorney General Clark told the meeting he believed Washington led all other districts in disposing of criminal cases, clearing approximately 10 a day.

Four Chief Justices Participate. Mr. Clark remarked also that as far as he knew this was the first judicial conference with four chief justices participating. Besides Mr. Vinson there were Chief Justice D. Lawrence Groner, retired, of the United States Court of Appeals; Chief Justice Harold M. Stephens of the appellate court, and Chief Justice Bolitha J.
